The Cheonggye Stream in Seoul, Past & Present

Course Description:

Korea has a long and rich history that provides a unique vantage point for understanding major processes in East Asia and the world. This course explores Korean history from the fourteenth century to the present. The first part of the course delves into key topics from the Chosŏn Dynasty (1392-1910), including Confucianization and the evolution of national identity. The second part focuses on politics, culture, and society under Japanese colonial rule (1910-1945). The final part turns to the contemporary era (1945 to present) to shed light on national division, social movements, gender relations, and popular culture in South Korea and North Korea.
Course Objectives:

1) Learn about major patterns, events, people, and issues in Korean history, 1392 to present.
2) Learn about the relevance of the past to the present.
3) Gain an understanding of the ways in which Korea's history fits into regional and global history.
4) Read critically by taking into account an author's (or filmmaker's) perspective and main points.

Korean Studies e-School:

This is a real-time distance-learning “CourseShare” that is part of the CIC (Committee on Institutional Cooperation) e-School for Korean Studies, which currently consists of thirteen core universities located in the Midwest and the Mid-Atlantic regions. It is a relatively new program that began operation during the 2012-13 academic year. I will teach this CourseShare primarily from a video-conferencing classroom located at the University of Wisconsin-Madison (UW) that connects UW students with students at Ohio State University (OSU) and the University of Minnesota (U of M).

Required Texts:

Other readings will be made available for students to view electronically on Learn@UW. Films will be available on YouTube and UW Box.

Course Requirements:

1) Attendance & Participation: 20%

You are expected to attend every lecture and discussion section. Missing lectures and/or discussion sections, insufficient preparation, minimal participation, and frequent late arrivals and early departures will adversely affect your attendance and participation grade. For discussion sections, be ready to talk about the assigned film or reading. You may also draw connections to earlier lectures.

2) Facilitating Discussion: 2%

Once this semester, you will facilitate a Friday discussion session. After reading the weekly postings of the others in your section, prepare at least 3 central questions pertaining to the film or reading assigned that Friday.
3) Weekly Postings: 30%

Each week you will write a 250-500 word posting in which you respond to the film or reading assigned for Friday’s discussion section. Post your responses to the appropriate discussion thread on Learn@UW no later than 7 pm on Thursday evening. On Learn@UW, I will post a question or questions each week. You can respond to these questions, or you can post a response that addresses other issues that you find interesting. Whichever approach you take, each response paper should have a specific focus that is clearly stated in a topic sentence at or near the beginning of your posting. Your top 10 postings will be calculated into your final grade. Late postings will not be accepted.

4) Quizzes: 18%

I will periodically administer unannounced 5-minute quizzes in lecture, usually at the beginning of class. I will give neither make-up quizzes nor time extensions for students who arrive late.

5) Final examination: 30%

The final exam will consist of multiple-choice questions, items for identification, and an essay question. I will not give make-up exams unless you have a valid medical emergency with proper documentation.

Course Policies:

1) I will regularly send course announcements, changes to the syllabus, and useful links. You are responsible for checking your UW email account daily, and for reading all course-related emails. If you have any questions about them, ask me in class or by email.

2) Laptops or tablets may be used only to refer to selected readings that do not appear in the course reader. Surfing the Internet or doing something else unrelated to this course detracts from the learning experience. If you appear to be off task, then I will check in to see what you are doing.

   Smartphones should be put on silent mode and put away at all times.

3) You are responsible for having the assigned reading (or notes for the assigned film) readily at your disposal for each lecture and discussion meeting.
4) Plagiarism – the use of another person’s words or ideas without citation – will not be tolerated in any assignment for this course. For more on how to avoid plagiarism, see the Writing Center’s “Writer’s Handbook”: http://writing.wisc.edu/Handbook/QuotingSources.html.

New Resource:

New this semester, the History Lab is a resource center where experts (PhD students) will assist you with your history papers. No matter your stage in the writing process—choosing a topic, conducting research, composing a thesis, outlining your argument, revising your drafts—the History Lab staff is here, along with your professors and teaching assistants, to help you sharpen your skills and become a more successful writer. Sign up for a one-on-one consultation online: http://go.wisc.edu/hlab

Academic Accommodations for Students:

Please let me know at the start of the semester if you have a need for an accommodation in his course. If you have any questions about this or require any assistance, feel free to contact me the McBurney Disability Resource Center.
