COURSE DESCRIPTION

The subject will be European imperialism and specifically the European partition of Africa in the late-nineteenth century. We shall examine the standard theories of imperialism postulated by thinkers such as Lenin, Hobson, Schumpeter, and others and see how they relate to the realities of the scramble for African colonies. In this respect, we shall consider the role of Bismarck, Leopold II of Belgium, Jules Ferry, William E. Gladstone, and a host of other political leaders and diplomats. Moreover, we shall examine the influence of missionaries, explorers, merchants, militarists, Social-Darwinists, writers and journalists.
